BELGIUM

BRUGGE: A CITY FULL OF LOVE

“Our Lady’s Church” is considered the most important church of the city with its valuable artworks. Its most important feature is having the highest tower. Its construction had started in the 13th century and the gothic styled building had been completed in 15th century. When it was finished, the tower length was 122 metres. This church is the second highest church of Belgium. The highest one is the cathedral in Antwerp with its 123-meter length. It is not about religion that this reputation belongs to Saint Salvator Church. There is Madonna (Virgin Mary) statue which was made by Michelangelo in his 20s , in the right side chapel of the church. It was made of marble, even if it had been made for a church in Sienna, Italy, it was brought here by Jan and Alexander Moscroen. Apart from this, there are about 15 marble statues here, as well. That’s the point makes the church important! Mona Lisa means a lot to Paris as in the same way that Madonna of Michelangelo means to Brugge. Right under this church, there is Memling Museum on the side of a canal. Back then, the place was a hospital. The hospital built in 1188 had been converted into a museum after 1978. Now, there are a lot of works remained from those times being exhibited inside. There are two important squares in Brugge first one is Market Place or Town Hall Square as known, the second one is Burg Square. This first one is being used for commercial means, the second one is being used to keep administrative buildings and religious objects.

UNIT 5

NICARAGUA

The city is located on the North-western shore of Lake Nicaragua, and it is famous for colourful buildings dating from colonial period. The common feature of Spanish colonial cities is that they all were built in a cage plan; a square or rectangular square in the middle and cage-like streets around the square. It is not possible to get lost. Besides, there is not a single dead end street which is quite popular in Middle East culture. By the way, streets are not named and apartments are not numbered in Nicaragua. A triangulation point is determined when one giving his address. It is pretty interesting. Lake Nicaragua is also known as Lake Granada as the city is located on the coast of the lake. The boat tours operated on the lake are very popular in the city. The most important feature of Lake Nicaragua is that it is the world's only freshwater lake that has Bull sharks which are dangerous for humans. The lake includes hundreds of islets formed as a result of volcanic activities. Some of these islets are inhibited by monkeys. We only took their photos from distance, because we heard that they steal the bags when a boat approaches the islet.
